

			Twitter Privacy Policy	Ebay Privacy Policy	NPR Privacy Policy	Amazon	Google	Reddit
		Data Collection	general info, location, links, cookies, log data, widget data, third party	collect all data you give them, combine data with other companies, use cookies to track use	contact information, credit card info, log of ip addresses and where you went on the site, cookies	Pretty standard: all the information you give them, they can keep. This includes mobile information, searches, password, credit card information (grey area), etc	language, name, email address, phone number, CC, hardware, OS, searches, duration of calls, they can store their data on your machine, cookies	IP address of accounts, email (not required), password, posts, comments, reddit gold, etc
		Use of Data	cater content to specific user, provide relevant ads, to determine if an account is still in use,	provide services, personalize site, give promos, help enforce terms and conditions, prevent fraud, keep site safe	Use to provide content, inform uses of new content	improve searches/customization in general. They use cookies to get information about your browser and to scope their ads. Also they use phones to get location info.	Improve ads, associate users with different devices, they can share your Google Account info with random people.	Ad targeting, block spammers/improve website in general.
		Sharing Data	3rd party access, service providers, law and harm, business transfer, non-private information	disclose information to facilitate transactions on the site, give data to other companies sometimes, share data with law enforcement	Only shares with other NPR stations, any info	Amazon passes your information onto the companies they have contracted with (affiliated businesses)	with consent, they can share your information to outside companies or individuals. They can share aggregated, non personally identifiable information.	They can disclose info if required by law to keep their services running. Anonymous aggregated data can be shared.
		children policy	under 13 cannot and should not use site			Must be over 18, otherwise parental assistance is required		Can't be younger than 13
			https://twitter.com/privacy	http://pages.ebay.com/help/account/p	http://www.npr.org/about-npr/179878450/priv	http://www.amazon.com/gp/help/custom		